From “Presenting to Win”, we’ve covered:

- Chapter 1: Persuasion (Chapter 1. You and Your Audience)
- Chapter 2: The Power of You (Chapter 2. The Power of the WIIFY)
- Chapter 5: The 12 Flow Structures (Chapter 4. Finding Your Flow)
- Chapter 6: No Second Chance... for a First Impression (Chapter 5. Capturing Your Audience Immediately)
- Chapter 7: Beginning, Middle, and End (Chapter 5)

5 Step Process

1 Fill in the “pre-brainstorming” form
(OUT: guide to brainstorming)

2 Do brainstorming (OUT: cluster ideas)

3 Put clusters into a “flow” (logical sequence)

4 Choose open gambit (hook them fast with question/weird fact)

5 Structure your presentation

Before presenting, ask yourself 4 questions:

- 1 What's Point B?
- 2 Who's Your Audience & What's Their WIIFY?
- 3 Do your main points stand strong?
- 4 Did you structure your points logically?

Communicating visually

If you are asked for copies of your slides... don't send them; executive summary instead (p.112)

Minimize number of lines in a slide:
for any slide, viewers start @ upper left corner & then do left-to-right movement (minimize those carriage returns)

Communicating visually

4 Design elements

1. Text
2. Numbers
3. Graphics
4. Links

From “Presenting to Win”, we will cover:

Chapter 11: Design Your Text as Headlines
(Chapter 7. Making the Text Sing)

Chapter 12: Design Your Numbers as Visuals
(Chapter 8. Making the Numbers Sing)

Chapter 8: Finishing Touches: Internal Linkages
(Chapter 10. Bringing Your Story to Life)

Chapter 9: Finishing Touches: External Linkages (Chapter 10)

older editions in ()

1. Making the text talk

Text comes in

1. Bullets (each expresses a core idea; one line; no articles, no conjunction)
2. Sentences (don't use them)

Don't

1. No dashes (suggest negative points) → Use dots
2. No symbols for sub-bullets & same number of sub-bullets for each main bullet
3. No abbreviations

1. Making the text talk

Use 4x4 or 6x4 rule (6 lines down; 4 words across) lines down should be consistent. For example:

1. enhanced memory
2. improved speed
3. ...

Choose one or two graphic effects & use them through the whole presentation

- Include text in boxes
- Create emphasis (e.g., by using “black on white”)

From “Presenting to Win”, we will cover:

Chapter 11: Design Your Text as Headlines
(Chapter 7. Making the Text Sing)

Chapter 12: Design Your Numbers as Visuals
(Chapter 8. Making the Numbers Sing)

Chapter 8: Finishing Touches: Internal Linkages
(Chapter 10. Bringing Your Story to Life)

Chapter 9: Finishing Touches: External Linkages (Chapter 10)

older editions in ()

2. Making the numbers sing?

Bar-charts

1. Numbers on top of bars (no scale from left)
2. Put legend at the right (end of eye sweep)

Pie charts

1. Put % inside wedges
2. Separate labels from numbers
3. Legend below (convention)

Hockey stick

Arrange bars from low to high (your results go at the end!!!)

3. Graphics to help your story flow

See your slides in "Slide Sorter"

Read titles of your slides. Does it flow? If not, fix it!

Do your slides look graphically similar? If not, use those 5 techniques! (Older edition: pp. 185-186)

3. Graphics to help your story flow

5 Graphics for your flow (1/2)

1. Bumper Slide = big text OR agenda

To separate sections of your presentation & easy transition

2. Indexing/Color Coding

Slides in the same section have same upper-left symbol

3. Icons

To express relationships among ideas of your presentation. Search cisco.com for "icons". Eg: yin-yan= integration of two forces; three circles=among; 3 items; 4 squares=4 parts; pyramid=hierarchy.

3. Graphics to help your story flow

5. Graphics for your flow (2/2)

4. Anchor objects

To express progression

5. Anticipation space

To create expectation by filling space on right side

From “Presenting to Win”, we will cover:

Chapter 11: Design Your Text as Headlines
(Chapter 7. Making the Text Sing)

Chapter 12: Design Your Numbers as Visuals
(Chapter 8. Making the Numbers Sing)

Chapter 8: Finishing Touches: Internal Linkages

4. Bringing your story to life by linking

Type 1: Internal (to tie presentation)

Type 1

Reference the flow structure

Logical transition

Cross-reference

Symmetry

Recurring theme

Rhetorical Question

How

Keep referring back to problem & opportunity

Logical connection between ideas

Forward reference: I'll cover that after

Backward reference: let's turn to that

Mention X @ start & then mention it only @ end

Eg, a scenario you can refer back to

[careful] quest your audience would ask

4. Bringing your story to life by linking

Type 1: Internal (to tie presentation)

Type 1

Mantra

Internal Summary

Enumeration

Do the math

Point B reinforcement

Say your company name

Slogan you repeat that supports Point B

Review & clear your audience's minds

Tell them you have 4 offerings. Then, describe them

Compare & contrast numbers with well-known examples (to get the feeling)

@ persuasive points of your presentation

Don't say "our company"

From “Presenting to Win”, we will cover:

Chapter 11: Design Your Text as Headlines
(Chapter 7. Making the Text Sing)

Chapter 12: Design Your Numbers as Visuals
(Chapter 8. Making the Numbers Sing)

Chapter 8: Finishing Touches: Internal Linkages

Chapter 9: Finishing Touches: External Linkages (Chapter 10)

older editions in ()

4. Bringing your story to life by linking

Type 2: External (to connect with your "audience")

Type 2

Direct Reference

Mention by name 1/+ members of your audience (take john,... during the break I was speaking)

Mutual Reference

Refer to person/lab linked to both you & your audience

Ask questions

To inject unpredictability

Contemporize

With today news or prior speakers

Localize

Find facts about the venue that relate to your message

Customize Opening Graphic

Location & date of your presentation

Data

The Guardian today ... That's exactly the issue our system addresses

Phraseology

NO

We think/believe

Type 2

Let's look at
We discussed earlier

We expect/are confident

Why

Include your audience
Your audience understood what you said

Never apologize. Get prepared!

Don't intro uncertainty

Finally, customize your presentation

Prior day of presentation

- . Learn who will attend (their interests)
- . Learn names of some key audience members

Day of presentation

- . NYT. This date is baseball...
- . www.scopesys.com/today
- . Chat with your audience (get interesting facts)
